WAWG welcomes Chandler Goule as NAWG CEO

The Washington Association of Wheat Growers is proud to welcome Chandler Goule as the new chief executive officer of the National Association of Wheat Growers.

“There are many issues facing the national wheat industry, not the least of which is the upcoming battle for the 2018 Farm Bill,” said Kevin Klein, president of the Washington Association of Wheat Growers. “We feel confident that with the selection of Chandler Goule as CEO, the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) is positioning itself to be a leader in the wheat industry when it comes to advocating for growers and protecting their livelihoods. The Washington state wheat organizations look forward to working with Chandler.”

Most recently, Goule served as senior vice president of programs at the National Farmers Union where he was heavily involved in farm bill legislation. He has also served as subcommittee staff director for the House Agriculture Committee. In addition to his CEO duties, he will also serve as the executive director of the National Wheat Foundation. WAWG Natural Resources Chair and former WAWG President Nicole Berg served on the NAWG CEO selection committee.
