Don't forget the landlords

- The talk about farm bill program sign-up decisions may be leaving nonfarming landlords wondering what all the fuss is about, but remaining ignorant could come with a hefty price tag.
- Landlords with crop share agreements must make the same program election as their operator. Landlords with cash rent agreements are not eligible for either ARC or PLC payments, but their operators are.

Don't forget the landlords

- If no program election is made by the deadline—March 15 for 2019 and 2020—the farm program defaults to whatever program was chosen in 2014. In addition, the acreage will be ineligible for a payment in 2019.
- Because this isn't confusing enough, landlords and operators should be aware that making a program election is not the same thing as an enrollment. An election for 2019 and 2020 has to be made by March 15, 2020, but the enrollment deadline for 2019 is through March 15, 2020, and the enrollment deadline for 2020 is through June 30, 2020.

Don't forget the landlords

- One thing that remains consistent, however, is that in all cases, unless a power of attorney form has been signed, both landlord and operator have to sign the program election form for each farm number unless the landlord has executed a power of attorney form with FSA.
- That power of attorney form could have been filed under the 2014 Farm Bill program signups, but unless a specific box was checked that included power of attorney for all future programs and actions, the operator no longer has the authority to sign for their landlord(s).
- Landlords and operators who previously filed a power of attorney form should check with their local FSA office to see if the form is eligible to make 2018 sign-up decisions.

Don't forget the landlords

- The 2018 Farm Bill also included an opportunity for a farm yield update. Neiberger said that while the yield update is not expected to have a lot of impact in the Pacific Northwest, it is primarily the responsibility of the landowner to file the necessary form, even for those landlords who are doing a cash rent lease. Once again, an operator may use a valid power of attorney to do this.
